Death Blow.

To the new effectiveness of enforcement officers in dealing with come has been added an important demonstration of the power of courts to operate without undue interference from profe sional defenders of criminals. At Oklahoma City seven defendants in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping case were convicted without delay. In & state court at Edwardsville, Ill, six persons were convicted for the kidnaping of August

Officials in charge of the government's drive against kidnapling and extortion are jubilant. They say that a death blow has been struck at an activity which has terrifled the country. It is claimed that kidnaping soon will be so dangerous for criminals that they won't dare practice it lest the price he death or a long sentence if they are captured

As support for the belief of officials that this can be accomplished, an elaborate system of detection, identification and prosecution is described. The government, it is said, has built up a resistance to kidnaping too strong to be overcome. It has furnished a pound of cure that will be viewed by kldnapers at the same time as an ounce of prevention. They will be unable to avail anything against it

This will be a real comfort as long as it continues to work. Reasonable doubt of its permanent effectiveness may be permitted, however, on the grounds of the prevalence of murder despite its status as a crime still more reprehensible than kidnaping. All Americans hope sincerely that kidnapers will take notice of the possible consequences of failure and forbear. It is hard to forget, at the same time, that criminal reasoning does not seem to have been affected greatly by the threat of capital punishment for the

Notes on a Legend.

Mrs James R. Ledwell of Chicago is not a name to arouse interest. Catherine O'Leary, daughter of the O'Learys who owned the cow which is supposed to have started the great Chicago fire, is a person close to one of the country's great legends.

The fact is, she claims to be the sole survivor of the famous O'Leary family. After years of silence, she told her story the other day. True to form, it shattered the legend, but it happens, unfortunately, that the legend is so much better established than the true story which has been handed down in the O'Leary family that the story hasn't a chance to survive,

However, it can find listeners in this generation, as long as the narrator is one of the original O'Learys. Its sallent facts nte these: The night of the fire, which was discovered sometime after $:30 o'clock, the O'Learys incurred a reputation which they have resented many times. They moved from neighborhood to neighborhood in Chicago trying to shake off the stigma of bemy the people who had started the great

The surviving O'Leary denies stoutly that one cow or any of the cows owned by the family had anything to do with the fire. The family was in bed when the fire was discovered. The milking had been finished hours ago. It simply couldn't have been a cow which started the catastrophe.

The O'Leary theory is more interesting. Some boys in the neighborhood were using the barn to house a beer party. One of them dropped a lighted clear in the hay. Whatever happened, the O'Learys lost everything of value and gained a reputation they would love dearly to lose. Their own story of what happened deserves a hearing before it finally is driven underground by the strength of the story about the cow that kicked the lantern.

At Odds With Wisdom.

The prohibition study aponatred by J = 3D. Rockefeller Jr. and now being placed hefore the people is a solid testimonial to tresincerity of at least one American who helieves his country can, if it will, develop a -attractory method of dealing with alcoholie beverages. Mr. Rockefeller formerly taileted the method had been discovered in the 18th amendment to the Constitution. Expensence convinced him to the contrary. He has furned now to the goal forsaken by the main body of prohibitionists after the amendment was accepted -- temperance.

One section from the report made under his aponsorship needs to be studied with particular thoughtfulness. It reads: "The primary objective of taxation should not be revenue but social control. Taxes should he levied not with the idea of filling the public treasury at whatever cost to public morality and efficiency, but as a method of reducing the consumption of alcohol."

The Roosevelt administration, in the opinion of most of those who pray for the success of its ideas, committed a grave error when it identified repeal of the 18th amendment with federal revenue. It placed the argument for repeal on a commercial basis by its attitude. The success of the repeal movement cannot be attributed in any part to the effect of the argument; it was successful in spite of general resentment against a plan to raise money by whooping up the liquor traffic.

Taxmakers can make chaos of the situation that will exist when the amendment finally is made non-effective. Only one thing can stop them. That is a warning from the people which will be so general that they will not do e to disregard it. In local, state and federal government, they are prepared to buiden alcoholic beverages with taxes so heavy that they will amount to subsidies presented to bootleggers. They have learned nothing, apparently, from the experiences of the last 13 years. They are as far from the common ideal of a liquor traffic controlled to the point of temperance as were the people who defeated their objective by accepting the 18th amendment and abandoning the work of educating the public about the desirability of temperance.

A Mighty Reserve.

Gains made recently in sales of life insurance indicate that the depression taught a striking lesson of the sound worth represented by a substantial policy.

No form of investment came through the chaotic days with such a fine record as insurance. Major companies not only weathered the economic storm but were able to carry on their business in the usual fashion and thousands of policy holders found in their insurance a bulwark which gave them some protection from the storm of adver-

When stocks dropped to the bottom, when real estate had no value as security for loans and when banks turned a deaf car to borrowers, most of the insurance companies pursued their customary program of policy loans and this proved a saving means of bridging the hard times to thousands throughout the country.

Laws as well as the usual practices of the business make life insurance companies ultra-conservative in their investments and methods. When the crash came this enabled them to preserve their assets with a safe margin and to comply with their contractural obligations to their policy holders.

The intiquated fallacy that in life insurance "a man must die to win" has been ; shattered completely during the last three years and a great army of policy holders stand ready to testify that they found their holdings a mighty reserve which served them when everything else failed

It is only natural that the lesson thus learned should be reflected in additional business as times improve. Under all conditions it is a comfortable thing to have the protection of ample insurance and inemergency a policy is the friend in need.

The operators have only themselves to blame for this condition. Company shacks and company stores were supposed to keep the men under better discipline. Instead they have promoted self-contained communities that think and act as a unit and have a morbid distaste for their employers and their would-be friends.

Mediation Senator Wagner's attempt to bring all problems of mediation in labor disputes under the national board is the result of vigorous complaints by labor organizations all over the country. Too many local mediation boards were packed to the eyes with representatives of capital. The fact that labor has felt it wasn't getting a fair break aggravated local strike situations in many cases.

Grover Whalen has been severely criticized in some quarters for an alleged antilabor bias. But the federation itself rates him as on the level and admits that he has done a good job of arbitrating

There is one war that the federation intends to fight to a finish. That is its fight against employers who are attempting to forbid any unionization at all. Certain theaters in New York for instance are compelling their employes to sign an agreement not to join any labor organization as a condition of keeping their jobs. This is a direct violation of NIRA and will be elim-

The Startling New

STUDEBAKERS OF 1934

ensationally designed! Sensationally priced!

TUDEBAKER is presenting the lowest priced fine cars in American motoring history in these startling new Studebakers of 1934!

Studebaker has stepped down into new fields of low price and stepped up traditional Studebaker quality in so doing.

The armor-plated bodies of these new Studebakers of 1934 are sensational in their beauty, strength and quiet. They go farther than any standard production bodies in the world in approximating the air-curve symmetry of the latest speed planes.

Appealing outside, they're utterly alluring when you open the doors ... with capacious seats, luxurious tailored upholstery and the finest fittings ever provided in cars so low priced. A new ventilating system assures draft-free comfort.

These new Studebakers have that stamina and brilliance of performance which enabled five $5% stock Studebakers not only to finish among the first twelve in the great Indianapolis Speedway race on May 30 last-but go through that entire contest without a single adjustment or repair!

They have uncanny "mechanical brains" that make driving almost entirely automatic.

The test of driving will fully convince you that no car you can buy is nearly as good a "buy" as these startling new low-priced Studebakers. The new Dictator Six is $645. The new Commander Eight is $845 The new President Eight is $1045!

Come in today and take out one of these new Studebakers of 1934 for a convincing trial drive.

THE DICTATOR . . . . $645 THE COMMANDER . . . $845 THE PRESIDENT . . . . $1045 Apose are base prices at the factory. Bampers, mare tires and
